Loch Awe and Ben Lui. Loch Awe is about 23 miles long, and throughout its entire length does not exceed three-quarters of a mile in width. The shores are wooded and covered with foliage, but of such a winding character they seldom permit of large stretches of water to be seen at once. At its foot, towards the east, is Ben Lui, which rises to a height of 3,708 feet, forming a scene of majestic grandeur.

Thanks so much for card, also v.---- it is'nt the last you will hear of that madame. am much better, but still under the Dr. and shall have to be for some time, please write soon telling all the news. Mabs.
